The same goes for the business pages. They were already in place. The content on your website has to go there from scratch. One of the reasons so many marketers cannot keep up with the writing and the SEO is because they are trying to achieve a business in a new channel that was never there before. The business is not made just to have a web presence and to sell products and services on the internet. It has to be optimized and optimized to make the customer visit your business website. Get the products and services out there as often as possible, but you've got to make sure that the customer is converting to that new channel. You've got to provide more content than the competition because the customer is just coming to your website and seeing your content, not their competitors. The business pages don't sell your products or your services and the web shouldn't try to do that.
